

MTR-i™ Management Team Roles Indicator

The MTR-i™ is 100% compatible with the Jungian/Myers-Briggs personality model. It can be used alongside psychological type and related instruments, or it can be used with teams with no mention of psychological type.

This training is suitable for anyone who works with teams, couples or individuals in management, coaching, counselling, conflict resolution and career development.

MTR-i™ identifies the contribution a person makes to a particular team and reflects the person's work persona. It indirectly measures how Jungian function-attitudes are currently being used in the team. How we actually behave at work may be different from our own Psychological Type preferences because of cultural pressure or the demands of the job. You can explore the differences using the MTR-i™ alongside a type-related instrument such as the MBTI® instrument or the MajorsPTI™.

The ITPQ™ (Ideal Team Profile Questionnaire) looks at what roles are needed in this team. It can be used with team members, management or customers.

The ITPQ™ can be used with the MTR-i™ and the MBTI® to provide a complete package which looks at the needs of the team, the roles being played in the team and the natural style of each of the team members.

The MTR-i™ can be used as the basis of team building workshops to:

- identify potential strengths and weaknesses of the team
- reduce and resolve team role conflicts
- increase self-awareness, self-management and stress management
- improve team interactions and team performance
